Article index

Number 1

DIERS bubbly disengagement correlation extended to horizontal cylinders and spheres
C. M. Sheppard 3
Pressure relief system alternatives for vessel jackets
C. A. Schiappa and D. K. Winegardner 7
Safety reviews and their timing
R. James and G. Wells 11
Probabilistic analysis of transient events by an event tree directly extracted from operability analysis. Evaluation of accidental releases of gas from a pressure-regulating installation
N. Piccinini, M. Scarrone and I. Ciarambino 23
Calorimetric data for hazard process assessment: alkene epoxidation with peracids
P. Cardillo 33
Combustion of some pesticides and evaluation of the environmental impact
V. Christiansen 39
Venting of bottom-initiated decompositions in azodicarbonamide and its formulations
M. W. Whitmore, D. P. Cutler and J. P. Gladwell 49

Number 2

European Community research in major industrial hazards
S. T. Cole and P. J. Wicks 68
Two-phase releases
M. Giot 77
Hydrogen fluoride source terms and dispersion
D. M. Webber, A. Mercer and S. J. Jones 94
Wind-tunnel simulation. Boundary layer effects in dense gas dispersion experiments
P. T. Roberts and D. J. Hall 106
Dispersion in the presence of buildings
N. J. Duijm and D. M. Webber 118
Wind-tunnel data sets for complex dispersion model evaluation
J. Havens, H. Walker and T. Spicer 124
European model evaluation activity
K. E. Petersen 130
Hazardous gas model evaluations. Is an equitable comparison possible?
S. R. Hanna 133
Users' views of model performance and expectations
P. Kinsman, J. Wilday, C. Nussey and A. Mercer 139
Risk management strategies for chlorine installations
G. Purdy and M. Wasilewski 147
Pesticide warehouse fire consequences: experiences from a Danish risk analysis study
Lene Smith-Hansen 157
Jet flame attack on vessels
N. J. Duijm 160
Mitigation of problem clouds
J.-M. Buchlin 167
Research to improve the quality of hazard and risk assessment for major chemical hazards
C. Nussey 175
Auditing – a European perspective
N. W. Hurst, R. Hankin, L. J. Bellamy and M. J. Wright 197

Number 3

Employee attitudes and safety in the chemical industry
I. Donald and D. Canter 203
FIRE – a database on chemical warehouse fires
R. Koivisto and D. Nielsen 209
Case histories of incidents in heated bitumen storage tanks
F. M. Davie, P. F. Nolan and T. W. S. Hoban 217
Critical conditions in uniform temperature systems wtih variable heat transfer coefficients in thermal explosion theory
S. A. El-Sayed 223
Combustion hazards posed by the pressurized atomization of high-flashpoint liquids
P. J. Bowen and L. C. Shirvill 233
A summary of incident reporting in the process industry
A. J. Brazier 243
Reducing the purge in hydrocarbon vent stacks
S. G. Bryce and R. E. J. Fryer-Taylor 249

Number 4

Safety issues on offshore process installations. An overview
O. J. Tveit 267
Accidental generation of gas clouds on offshore process installations
R. P. Cleaver, C. E. Humphreys and C. G. Robinson 273
Possible sources of ignition of potential explosive gas atmospheres on offshore process installations
R. K. Eckhoff and O. Thomassen 281
Course and strength of accidental explosions on offshore installations
K. van Wingerden 295
Fires on offshore process installations
R. Wighus 305
Structural response to accidental explosions and fires on offshore process installations
T. A. Haaverstad 310

Quantitative risk assessment applied to offshore process installations. Challenges after the Piper Alpha disaster
C. G. Ramsay, A. J. Bolsover, R. H. Jones and W. G. Medland 317
An offshore gas field safety strategy and quantitative risk assessment model
K. Miller 331
Quantification of escalation effects in offshore quantitative risk assessment
M. Morris, A. Miles and J. Cooper 337
Safety and risk management on offshore process installations during design and construction
J. A. Pappas 345
Methodology for the analysis of risks during the construction and installation phases of an offshore platform
V. M. Trbojevic, L. J. Bellamy, P. G. Brabazon, T. Gudmestad and W. K. Rettedal 350
Quality and offshore quantitative risk assessment
R. Pitblado 360
The influence of human factors science on safety in the offshore industry
L. J. Bellamy 370
The HSE offshore fire and explosion research programme
J. R. Lane, P. D. Renwick and T. Al-Hassan 376
The Norwegian approach to safety in offshore petroleum activity
T. G. Dahle 379
Can offshore experience help in reducing onshore losses?
T. Lode 382

Number 5

Numerical simulation of heavy gas cloud dispersion within topographically complex terrain
G. A. Perdikaris and F. Mayinger 391
Methodological aspects of the application of adiabatic calorimetry for thermal safety investigation
A. Kossoy, V. Belochvostov and J.-L. Gustin 397
Loss prevention in a modern ethylene plant
J. Olivo 403
Relief vent sizing for a Grignard reaction
M.-H. Yue, J. J. Sharkey and J. C. Leung 413
Quantified risk assessment – a nuclear industry viewpoint
J. R. Thomson 419
Evaporation rates of liquid hydrogen and liquid oxygen spilled onto the ground
K. Takeno, T. Ichinose, Y. Hyodo and H. Nakamura 425
Discounting of delayed versus early mortality in societal risk criteria
R. F. Griffiths 432

Number 6

The modelling of pool vaporization
P. Leonelli, C. Stramigioli and G. Spadoni 443
Mitigation of hydrogen fluoride aerosols by dry powders
K. W. Schatz and V. M. Fthenakis 451
Recent progress in the understanding of steam explosions
D. F. Fletcher and T. G. Theofanous 457
Uncertainty representation and propagation in quantified risk assessment using fuzzy sets
J. Quelch and I. T. Cameron 463
The boiling liquid expanding vapour explosion
A. M. Birk and M. H. Cunningham 474
Vent sizing for gas-generating runaway reactions
J. Singh 481
Safe use of refrigerants for process applications
R. W. James 492
